

ABSTRACT

A MEDICAL DEVICE HAVING A SMOOTH, HARDENED SURFACE

The surface of a medical device is treated by exposure to a gas at a pressure less than atmospheric pressure to produce a hardened, minimally abrasive surface layer substantially comprising chromium nitride.